HALL OF FAME TOP 20 PASSERS

CANTON, OHIO -- San Francisco's Steve Young became the all-time top-rated passer in 1994. He displaced his former teammate who had held the top position in passer rating since midway through the 1988 season. Young, a 10-year NFL veteran, trailed Joe Montana of the Kansas City Chiefs by one-tenth of a rating point at the start the season. The 49ers' quarterback claimed the top spot in week six and continued to widen the gap throughout the NFL's 75th anniversary season.

The Pro Football Hall of Fame's Top Twenty display ranks the lifetime leaders in passing, receiving, rushing and scoring statistics and is updated weekly throughout the NFL season. The Top Twenty rankings include statistics from the All-America Football Conference (1946-49), as well as the American and National Football Leagues. Among the Top 20 passers, only Otto Graham of the Cleveland Browns played in the AAFC. With his AAFC numbers, Graham ranks fourth with an 86.6 rating. With his NFL-only statistics, he ranks out of the Top Twenty with a 78.1 point score.

In 1994, Young added a career-best 112.8 rating and extended his NFL record to four consecutive seasons with a passer rating over 100. He now holds a commanding lead among the Top Twenty with a 96.8 rating. Although Montana slipped one position, the 16-year pro holds a firm lock on the No. 2 spot with a 92.3 rating.

THE COFFIN CORNER: Vol. 17, No. 2 (1995)

There was no change in position for two quarterbacks from the AFC East who rank third and fifth lifetime. Miami's Dan Marino staged a remarkable comeback in 1994 after suffering a torn Achilles tendon last season. The Dolphins' quarterback returned to form and tossed 30 touchdown passes this season to improve his passer rating to 88.2. Jim Kelly of the Buffalo Bills remained fifth and now owns an 85.8 rating.

Two quarterbacks reached the 1500 pass attempts needed to qualify for the career rankings in lifetime passing and entered the Top Twenty during 1994. Brett Favre of the Green Bay Packers entered in week 15 while the Los Angeles Raiders' Jeff Hostetler joined the passing elite in the final week of the season. Favre and Hostetler rank 11th and 14th respectively. Dave Krieg of the Detroit Lions posted the most noticeable change in position among quarterbacks already ranked in the Top Twenty. He advanced four positions from 11th to 7th.

Rice enjoyed the largest gain among top twenty receivers. The 49er wideout celebrated a career-high during the NFL's 75th anniversary season.

The receiving rankings make up one-fourth of the Pro Football Hall of Fame's popular Top Twenty display. As part of the Hall of Fame's $8 million expansion, the attractive, eight-foot tall, four-sided pylon that presents the top twenty leaders in passing, receiving, rushing and scoring was renovated and relocated to the recently-completed Adventure Room.

Updated every week during the NFL season, this attention-getting exhibit differs from similar rankings in that statistics from the All-America Football Conference (1946-49) are included along with those from the American and National Football Leagues. However, there are no receivers among the Top Twenty leaders who played in the AAFC.

Rice, a 10-year NFL veteran, caught 112 passes to vault from fifth to second all-time, passing Charlie Joiner, James Lofton and Steve Largent along the way. Art Monk, in his first season with the New York Jets, made 46 receptions to become the first receiver ever to catch more than 900 career passes. The former Washington Redskin now has 934 receptions during his 15-year NFL career.

The biggest ascension by a receiver in the top twenty during 1994 came from Buffalo's Andre Reed who climbed nine positions from 15th to sixth all-time. The 10-year pro had a career-high 90 passes while leading the Bills in receiving for the eighth time in nine years. Reed has now caught 676 career pass receptions. Following Reed is a receiver who changed coasts this year, leaving the Los Angeles Rams for Washington. Henry Ellard recorded a team-high 74 catches in his first season with the Redskins to bump his career total to 667 which places him at No. 7.

Gary Clark battled injuries during his second season with Arizona but managed to catch 50 passes for the Cardinals. Clark, a veteran of 10 NFL seasons, is tied for 8th place with 662. Only one new receiver joined the career elite during 1994. Sterling Sharpe of the Green Bay Packers entered the Top Twenty in week 13 and steadily climbed the rankings. He finished his seventh pro season in 14th place with a career total of 595 catches.

HALL OF FAME TOP TWENTY RUSHERS

CANTON, OHIO -- During the NFL's 75th anniversary season in 1994, Barry Sanders of the Detroit Lions joined the ranks of the all-time leading rushers in the Pro Football Hall of Fame's Top Twenty rushing display.

The rushing rankings make up one-fourth of the football museum's popular Top Twenty display. As part of the Hall of Fame's current $8 million expansion project, the attractive, eight-foot tall, four-sided pylon that presents the top twenty leaders in passing, receiving, rushing and scoring was renovated and relocated to the recently-completed Adventure Room.

Updated every week during the NFL season, this attention-getting exhibit differs from similar rankings in that statistics from the All-America Football Conference (1946-49) are included along with those from the American and National Football Leagues. In the rushing category of the display, only Joe Perry played in the AAFC. He now ranks tenth with 9,723 yards. Without his AAFC production of 1,345 yards, the Hall of Famer would be in the 15th spot.

Sanders led the NFL in rushing in 1994 with a personal-best 1,883 yards to bring his career total to 8,672. The six-year veteran entered the Top Twenty in week five of the season and quickly climbed the rankings. He finished the year as the 13th-ranked rusher of all-time.

Sanders' collegiate teammate, Thurman Thomas of the Buffalo Bills also made a considerable move among the leading ground gainers. The seven-year pro turned in his sixth consecutive 1,000-yard season to climb six positions in the Top Twenty from No. 18 to No. 12. The Bills' leading rusher for each of his pro seasons, Thomas has a career rushing yardage total of 8,724 yards.

One other running back, Marcus Allen of the Kansas City Chiefs, also improved his ranking among the rushing elite. Allen, who became only the ninth player in NFL history to reach the 10,000-yard plateau in rushing, advanced two positions during 1994. He finished his 13th NFL season in 9th place with 10,018 career yards.

The only other running back active in 1994 that ranked in the Top Twenty was Philadelphia's Herschel Walker, who led the Eagles in rushing with 528 yards. Walker is ranked No. 19 lifetime with 7,996 yards.

HALL OF FAME TOP TWENTY SCORERS

CANTON, OHIO -- Matt Bahr of the New England Patriots posted a career high point total in 1994. He was one of the six placekickers active during the NFL's 75th anniversary season who added to his all-time total in the Pro Football Hall of Fame's Top Twenty scoring display.

The scoring rankings make up one-fourth of the football museum's popular display. As part of the Hall of Fame's massive $8 million expansion, the Top Twenty display was refurbished and relocated. The attention-getting exhibit that presents the top twenty leaders in passing, receiving, rushing and scoring is updated every week during the NFL season.

The Hall of Fame's Top Twenty differs slightly from similar rankings in that statistics from the All-America Football Conference (1946-49) are included along with those from the American and National Football Leagues. Among the Top Twenty scorers, only Lou Groza of the Cleveland Browns played in the AAFC - including his four years in the AAFC, Groza ranks third all-time with 1,600 points. Without his 259 points that came in the AAFC, Groza would be No. 10.

Bahr, in his first full season with New England, tallied 117 points for the Patriots to advance two positions among the Top Twenty scorers. The 16-year veteran started the season in the 14th position -- one spot behind his brother Chris -- and finished the campaign in 12th place.

Although he did not improve his position in the Top Twenty, Nick Lowery continued to chase the all-time scoring leaders. After spending 14 seasons in a Kansas City Chiefs' uniform, Lowery joined the New York Jets this season and scored 86 points to bring his career total to 1,559. He trails Groza for third place by a mere 49 points.

Philadelphia's Eddie Murray scored 96 points for the Eagles to retain his lock on 10th place overall. Following Murray in 11th place is Gary Anderson of the Pittsburgh Steelers who netted 104 points in 1994. It marked the eighth time he has scored more than 100 points in a season.

Two placekickers who each climbed two positions in the Top Twenty in 1994 were Morten Andersen of the New Orleans Saints and Atlanta Falcons' Norm Johnson. Andersen registered his ninth 100-plus point season in the past ten years. The 13-year pro, all spent with the Saints, produced 116 points to raise his career total to 1,318 points and jumped to 13th place. Johnson finished the season with 95 points which places him at No. 16 with 1,205 points.
